From the Land of Green Ghosts: A Burmese Odyssey

By Pascal Khoo Thwe

Brand New Book. In 1988, Dr. John Casey, a professor visiting Burma, meets a waiter in Mandalay with a passion for the works of James Joyce, and the encounter changes both their lives. Pascal, a member of the Kayan Padaung tribe, was the first member of his community to study English at a university. Within months of his meeting with Dr. Casey, Pascal’s world lay in ruins. Burma’s military dictatorship forces him to sacrifice his studies, and the regime’s brutal armed forces murder his lover. Fleeing to the jungle, he becomes a guerrilla fighter in the life-or-death struggle against the government. In desperation, he writes a letter to the Englishman he met in Mandalay. Miraculously reaching its destination, the letter leads to Pascal’s rescue and his enrollment in Cambridge University, where he is the first Burmese tribesman ever to attend. From the Land of Green Ghosts unforgottably evokes the realities of life in modern-day Burma and one man’s long journey to freedom despite almost unimaginable odds.

Pascal Khoo Thwe is a Burmese tribesman—a Kayan Padaung from the hills south of Mandalay, where the women wear brass coils around their artificially elongated necks, demons are captured by seizing their testicles with bamboo tongs, and opium poppies keep the economy going. Baptized a Catholic (hence the "Pascal") by an itinerant Italian missionary, he is raised in a magical world of ghosts and goblins, the famous "nats" that animate and infest the jungled landscape, his grandfather a powerful, charismatical, anti-authoritarian regional chief. This article examines public debates about capital punishment from the 1840s onwards, with a focus on the highly politicised issue of the punishment for rape.
