Polymer films in sensor applications: a review of present uses and future possibilities

Gábor Harsányi (Gábor Harsányi is Associate Professor at the Technical University of Budapest, Department of Electronics Technology, 1521 Budapest, Hungary.)

Sensor Review
ISSN: 0260-2288
Publication date: 1 June 2000

Abstract
Polymeric materials have gained a wide theoretical interest and practical application in sensor technology. They can be used for very different purposes and may offer unique possibilities. The paper gives a broad summary about the sensor structures and sensing polymer films used in a wide variety of sensors. Finally, the present status and perspectives as well as the advantages of specific polymer based sensors are summarised.

Keywords
Polymers Sensors

Citation

https://doi.org/10.1108/02602280010319169

To read the full version of this content please select one of the options below

You may be able to access this content by logging in via Shibboleth, Open Athens or with your Emerald Account.

To rent this content from Deepdyve, please click the button.

If you think you should have access to this content, click the button to contact our support team.