An Evaluation of Teaching Practice in the Minimum Essentials of English Through Grades Six to Twelve in the Schools of Cache County, Utah

W. Wendell Perkins, Utah State University

Date of Award: 5-1934

Document Type: Thesis

Degree Name: Master of Science (MS)

Department: School of Teacher Education and Leadership

Committee
E. A. Jacobsen

Abstract
National English Committees insist that composition content is of first importance; organization of ideas, second; and form third. The writer agrees with this point of view, but believes that a large proportion of class time in English, all through the grades, is spent in trying to establish knowledge and skill in the use of grammar, punctuation, capitalization, and mechanics generally.

Checksum 4bde9036ae6fb0b1d6af514390c9bb2b

Recommended Citation

5) This definition captures the essential task of student assessment in the teaching and learning process. Student assessment enables instructors to measure the effectiveness of their teaching by linking student performance to specific learning objectives. The second form, formative assessment, involves the evaluation of student learning over the course of time. Its fundamental purpose is to estimate students' level of achievement in order to enhance student learning during the learning process. Traditional grading on the other hand, according to Stassen et al. does not provide the level of detailed and specific information essential to link student performance with improvement. The assessment and evaluation literacy needs from the learner's perspective is also an important part of an instructional program. The needs of assessment and evaluation process can be used as the basis for developing curricula and classroom practice that are responsive to learners' needs. It encompasses both what learners know and can do and what they want to learn and be able to do. Learners need opportunities to evaluate their progress toward meeting goals they have set for themselves in learning English. Keywords: assessment, evaluation, foreign language learning, teaching, curriculum. essential components of teaching and learning in English language arts. Without an readiness to advance to the next grade, while another evaluates students' need for remediation. The communicative approach, which was in vogue in the late '90s, is still widely considered as the latest advancement in modern language teaching. Just remember, your evaluation criteria must be clear so students know what they're being graded on. Oh, and one more thing. Here, students must go through websites to find the information they need to fill out a worksheet. Students can also use their devices to access free, online exercises that reinforce language and/or skills seen in class. The key issue here is to be creative with the use of smartphones. It's got a huge collection of authentic English videos that people in the English-speaking world actually watch on the regular. There are tons of great choices there when you're looking for songs for in-class activities.