Abstract

Lo scrittore e intellettuale di Trinidad C.L.R. James è ad oggi riconosciuto come una voce di spicco in molti ambiti disciplinari come la critica letteraria, gli studi culturali, politologici e storici. Da critico e attivista politico, la sua vita e il suo lavoro attraversarono i Caraibi, la Gran Bretagna e l'America fino al punto da poter esser visto come l'emblematica figura del «black Atlantic» così come la definisce Paul Gilroy. Questo studio considera alcuni degli scritti di James sul cricket e si concentra sulle modalità in cui questi ultimi fanno emergere le categorie di razza e colore della pelle all'interno di una complessa stratificazione di significati, molti dei quali connessi con questioni di potere, imperialismo e classe sociale. In questo contesto, James appare una figura fortemente legata ad alcuni elementi della cultura britannica, ad esempio, come lui stesso afferma, al puritanesimo. Dunque, egli si conferma come una voce originale nell'affermare la cultura nera e quella caraibica nell'interstizio oceanico tra il mondo britannico e quello dell'America atlantica, pur tuttavia rifiutandosi di attribuire aprioristicamente a razza e colore della pelle alcuna caratteristica intrinseca.

It’s Not Cricket Rae Simon Faber 9780571215829 : This is a definitive history of the seedy underside of cricket. From the 18th-century crowd violence to the obsessive will to win of W.G. Grace. She wasn't afraid of anything—not thunder, not lightning, not the big black dog at the end of the block. And when she wanted to walk home a new way and Louise wouldn’t, she called her sister a scaredy-cat and set out alone. But all the bravado in the world failed to help when Sheila Rae found herself lost. Luckily, her sister was not far behind. “Children will love it.”—School Library Journal. Supports the Common Core State Standards. It’s Not Cricket is a hilarious post war comedy produced by one Britain’s finest comedy talents, Peter Rogers, and his future wife and probably the finest female producer of her generation, Betty E. Box. Major Bright (Basil Radford) and Captain Early (Naunton Wayne) are two helpless intelligence officers in the British army in postwar Germany. Sent back to England for a spot of leave they fail to notice that their new batman is actually war criminal Otto Fisch (Maurice Denham) and when he vanishes the two officers are quickly demobed. When they are invited to a weekend country house party for a cricket match they stumble across a robbery plot involving a diamond that Fisch has stolen. Will the two helpless detectives finally catch Fisch and recover the diamond?
