Title: O. A. C. Review Volume 18 Issue 3, December 1905

Author: Ontario Agricultural College

Abstract: This Christmas issue contains guest and student articles on diverse topics related to agriculture. Subjects include woodlot conversation, nature poetry, mosquito eradication, politics, and careers after college. Campus articles report the efforts of the Y. M. C. A., Union Literary Society and photographs of the current staff publishing The Review. Athletic events include the results of the cross-country run and football games. The Macdonald column reports the Halloween activities at Macdonald Institute, domestic science in Nova Scotia, and a meeting of the Y. W. C. A. Alumni news is available in the Alumni column and highlights a retrospective of the editors of The Review.

URI: http://hdl.handle.net/10214/13608

Date: 1905

Rights: Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivs 2.5 Canada

Rights Holder: University of Guelph

Terms of Use: All items in the Atrium are protected by copyright with all rights reserved unless otherwise indicated.

Files in this item

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Files</th>
<th>Size</th>
<th>Format</th>
<th>View</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>OAC_Review_Vol18_No3.pdf</td>
<td>12.52Mb</td>
<td>PDF</td>
<td>View/Open</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

This item appears in the following Collection(s)

Except where otherwise noted, this item’s license is described as Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivs 2.5 Canada encourage a cross-disciplinary dialogue. • To provide educational materials for the university-based scholars in order to advance teaching in social sciences.

Long term economic and political discontent led to the 1905 revolution. Defeat by Japan brought the Tsar's rule into question. The Bloody Sunday massacre was an important short term cause. Over three-quarters of the Russian population were unhappy with their position in the Empire. Peasants and workers alike suffered horrendous living and working conditions and hence posed a threat to the Tsarist regime. Discontent increased in the years before 1905 in the form of riots, illegal strikes and protests. Discontent among the peasantry. Haymaking near Moscow, 1900.