Main article: Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD). This is the comprehensive list and description for all of the police ranks within the Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD) and all known rank holders in the Major Crimes Universe. Department: the Los Angeles Police Department. Office: a functional office under the direction of the Chief of Police. Bureau: a major segregation, either functional or geographical, of kindred phases of activities within the Department. Los Angeles Police Department Information. There are over 250 different jobs for sworn officers in the LAPD. All LAPD officers begin their careers in patrol. The LAPD service area is comprised of 21 stations, known as “areas” or “divisions.” The LAPD works to make sure that its officers are connected to each and every community by offering a police force that collectively speaks 30 languages. Additionally, LA cops have access to interpreters 24 hours a day to communicate with citizens who speak other languages. The LAPD has a number of community projects that aim at reducing crime in the local neighborhoods. The paper relates the system failure to the organizational environment, and suggests that consideration of the social factors be integrated into the process of planning for information systems.

Similarly, at the BPD, the idea for mental health wellness programming emerged from department leaders, both formal and informal, witnessing officers in need of support while experiencing personal hardships such as divorce in conjunction with the inherent stress of a career in law enforcement. Overview. I provide evidence from the Los Angeles Police Department to show that officers appear to have responded to increased oversight by reducing crime-fighting activities in an attempt to avoid investigation. Discover the world's research. 17+ million members. Declines were larger in cases where officers maintained higher degrees of discretionary authority and were subject to greater risk of error, namely, those involving misdemeanor offenses (Shi, 2009). These findings are consistent with research examining the extent to which the Los Angeles Police Department’s (LAPD) response to the Rodney King riot affected officer behavior (Prendergast, 2001; Prendergast, , 2002.

This paper critiques the current system of performance management in the child protection system.