Generally speaking, as social issues are caused by the fact that every individual is slightly different from the rest, all pulling in different directions as far as motivation and goal. Even if a majority of people have agreed that a certain convention is acceptable, there will always be a few for whom the convention does not or can not apply. Humans are the one who create problems and humans are the one who support them by not raising voice against such problems. Heard about justice lohiya case. A judge gets killed and we have no proof that who killed him. And his family was so afraid that his son once said that he has no suspicion about his father’s death, it was due to natural cause. See the condition of the family of a judge. How can a common man survive in such an environment. Social difficulties often cause people to unite and to make significant efforts for the solution of complex problems. One should always remember that the problem will not disappear by itself, it definitely needs to be addressed. The causes of the problems in the family. The causes of the problems in the family are different. Most often, they relate to personal space, associated with financial difficulties or have a pronounced social orientation. The fact that upon marriage, both men and women learn to take the perspective of each other. Thus, problems in the family have their reasons and consequences. It is important to try to solve them in a timely manner so as not to aggravate the situation. 0. Social Problems, Second Edition, is unique in that all chapters are organized in a consistent format, beginning with the definition and prevalence of the social problem covered, followed by levels of causation, consequences, and interventions. Each chapter includes a discussion of the future of each social problem covered and a summary of its substantive issues. All chapters conclude with discussion questions, references, and a list of relevant websites. This lively, readable volume introduces students to a variety of sociological viewpoints on social problems. Every topic is analyzed from ind Conclusion social work intervention, social workers offer intervention to individuals, families and groups which enable them to meet their needs and issues. The main purpose of these interventions is to aid clients in alleviating problems and improving their well being. It is crucial that social workers should think creatively about interventions that may be helpful to the individuals, couples, families, and groups or communities they serve. However, social work intervention usually involves some minor changes to plans as the situation continues to change and additional information becomes ava