In this book the author describes the technology and organization of transportation of wood by basins of the rivers Drava, Savinja and Sava in Slovenia (Yugoslavia). A complete survey of building and using rafts, of rafting and log-floating down the rivers, starting from the the beginning of this technology in this region in the 12th century until 1950 is given. In 1950 transport of wood by floating down rivers and other water currents in this area was substituted by the new technology of wood transport by roads and railroads.

The floating and rafting of wood on the Drava, Savinja and Sava river [Yugoslavia] [1986]
